DEAN'S ADDRESS

Troy J. Eggers

Troy Eggers has served Columbia with great distinction for more than two decades. Since joining the University in 2000, Eggers has excelled in a variety of senior positions within Columbia Business School, the School of International and Public Affairs, and the Office of the Provost. As executive vice provost, he oversaw critical areas of academic management—financial planning, faculty housing, human resources, travel, emergency protocols, and space planning—in addition to oversight of the International Students & Scholars Office; Columbia University Press; the University Seminars; and the Alliance joint venture among Columbia, École Polytechnique, Sciences Po, and Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne University. Eggers has also served as a member of the University's Emergency Management Operations Team.

Prior to his time in the Office of the Provost, Eggers served as senior associate dean of the School of International and Public Affairs, responsible for all student-related and administrative departments and functions. Before that, he spent 10 years at Columbia Business School, where he ran Executive Education, successfully seeing it through the challenges of the 2007–2008 financial crisis, and for a period also served as assistant dean of Executive MBA programs.

In 2020, he joined the School of Professional Studies (SPS) as interim dean before being appointed full-time dean in August 2021. Under his leadership, SPS has grown its academic portfolio with the launch of the M.S. in Political Analytics, M.S. in Biodiversity Data Analytics, and M.S. in Project Management programs, as well as the Columbia SPS CUNY Fellowship and the Career Catalyst Internship Program, and has expanded its Summer Pre-College offerings.

MORNING FACULTY ADDRESS

Scott Rosner, J.D.

Scott Rosner is the director of the Master of Science in Sports Management program at the Columbia University School of Professional Studies. In this role, he leads all programmatic and curricular development efforts, creates professional development opportunities for students, oversees a staff of more than 40 faculty and administrators, and leads all strategic planning efforts for the program, including marketing, enrollment, student life, and alumni affairs. Rosner is also a professor of professional practice at the School of Professional Studies and has created and teaches three courses in the Sports Management program, which is widely considered one of the top programs of its kind globally.

Prior to joining the faculty at Columbia in January 2018, Rosner was a practice professor in the Legal Studies & Business Ethics Department at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and the faculty associate director of the Wharton Sports Business Initiative. He taught courses at Wharton and at the University of Pennsylvania Carey Law School and was a five-time recipient of the prestigious Whitney Award for excellence in undergraduate teaching.

Rosner has led consulting projects with a variety of clients across the sports industry. He is the lead author of the leading textbook The Business of Sports and the forthcoming Sports Business. Professor Rosner received a J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania Carey Law School, an M.S. in Sport Management from the University of Massachusetts Amherst, and a B.A. in Psychology from the University of Michigan. He is a native of Gladwyne, Pennsylvania, and currently resides in northern New Jersey with his family. His hobbies include running, playing soccer, and going to physical therapy after running and playing soccer.

AFTERNOON FACULTY ADDRESS

Mary Sormanti, Ph.D., M.S.W., M.S.

Mary Sormanti, Ph.D., M.S.W., M.S., focuses her scholarship on psychosocial oncology, grief and bereavement, palliative and end-of-life care, trauma, and narrative medicine. She has an extensive record of publication, including peer-reviewed journal articles, book chapters, and professional writings addressing cancer care, HIV prevention, intimate partner violence, and clinical practice with individuals and families facing life-threatening illness. Her work emphasizes the role of narrative in clinical practice, professional development, and interprofessional care.

At Columbia, she has taught courses in trauma-informed practice, motivational interviewing, research methods, and narrative-based clinical approaches. She co-directs the DBT Training Program and Lab at the School of Social Work and serves on the Columbia Commons IPE Steering Committee, which launched Columbia's first Interprofessional Day of Action in 2018—now in its ninth year with more than 1,600 participants from 10 schools—and she teaches an annual Interprofessional Education (IPE) seminar.

Dr. Sormanti is a senior educational partner at the Center for Prolonged Grief, where she supervises M.S.W. interns and participates in research and educational projects. She has held editorial roles with leading journals, including the Journal of Psychosocial Oncology and Families in Society: The Journal of Contemporary Social Services, in addition to guest editing and reviewing for multiple publications. Her research has been funded by the National Institutes of Health, the Open Society Foundations, and other organizations, supporting studies on HIV prevention, grief treatment, and resilience in bereaved families.

Earlier in her career, Dr. Sormanti maintained a clinical practice in oncology, hospice, and bereavement care. She holds clinical licensure in New York and Massachusetts, and her teaching and scholarship remain deeply informed by this practice background.

MORNING STUDENT ADDRESS

Aaman Basra

Aaman Basra was raised in Jakarta, Indonesia, by a father who built his career in business and a mother whose warmth and quiet discipline shaped everything about the way he moves through the world. He completed his undergraduate studies at Penn State before moving to New York to attend Columbia University School of Professional Studies, graduating from the Applied Analytics program in December 2025.

At Columbia, Aaman threw himself into the community. He contributed to the Women in Data & Technology Club, helped scale the Applied Analytics Club, and formed lifelong friendships with classmates from more than a dozen countries. What started as a pursuit of analytics became something far larger—a journey that reshaped how he sees the world and his place in it.

Today, Aaman works as a product intelligence analyst in the AdTech industry, building systems that bring clarity to content at massive scale. A runner and a writer at heart, he believes that growth is never a solo act, that curiosity will always outperform certainty, and that the best chapters are the ones we write together long after we leave this place.

AFTERNOON STUDENT ADDRESS

Thomas Quinn

Thomas (Tom) Quinn is a graduating student in the Master of Science in Information & Knowledge Strategy program at the Columbia University School of Professional Studies. While at Columbia, he worked across disciplines with peers and faculty from SPS, the Business School, the School of Engineering and Applied Science, and Strategic Communications. His research examined how passive reliance on large language models (LLMs) narrows the range of ideas considered. This dynamic limits edge-case discovery and reduces independent problem framing. He coined the term “social stack,” where LLMs combine sycophancy (overly agreeable responses), glazing (extended, overconfident explanations), and ushering (subtle nudges toward next steps). Together, these response patterns shape user thinking and raise important questions about how AI should be integrated into knowledge work.

Tom is a founding partner of Alpha Advisory LLC, where he advises organizations on practical AI implementation strategies. His work focuses on helping small and midsize businesses adopt AI in ways that expand human capability, preserve decision-making ownership, and strengthen workforce resilience. He is building tools and advisory frameworks that expand an organization’s opportunity set while capturing efficiency gains from AI and automation. Tom holds an MBA from NYU Stern and a B.S. in computer engineering from Bucknell. He is the proud father of two sons and lives in Jersey City with his wife of 28 years and their Portuguese Water Dog, Tyde.
